BOSTON — November 9, 2012 — Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts (BCBSMA) is 'A Top Place to Work' according to The Boston Globe. BCBSMA, with 3500 employees, was recognized as one of Massachusetts 2012 top organizations in the "largest employer" category.

"Our associates are committed to making quality health care affordable for our nearly three million members," said Chief Human Resource Officer Jason Robart. "They are our greatest asset and we are honored that they helped spotlight BCBSMA as a top employer on this prestigious list."

The Boston Globe's 2012 Top Places to Work survey was conducted by WorkPlace Dynamics of Exton, Pa., specialists in employee engagement and retention. The Globe invited 1,586 employers to participate in the survey; 304 organizations employing a total of 210,000 people completed the process. Completed surveys were received from 81,907 individuals, who rated their employers based on workplace practices in compensation, leadership, appreciation, career opportunities and management.

"When we launched in 2008 during the Great Recession, we wondered if employers would lose focus on keeping their employees happy," The Boston Globe Business Editor Shirley Leung said. "But businesses have continued to make strides in employee appreciation and opportunities. With more than 300 companies surveyed this year, we saw our highest participation rate to date."
